

Christina Branca

Senior Tax Manager

“My client’s ability to navigate complex international tax rules is more important than ever.”

I joined Johanson & Yau in 2005 following prior public accounting experience with a Big Four firm. My professional focus spans all things tax, including a leadership role within our international tax practice.

My passion is providing specialized services in tax compliance and planning on behalf of individuals, privately-held corporations and partnerships, particularly related to tax issues associated with U.S. expatriates and foreign nationals. This is an especially important need across Silicon Valley and the broader Bay Area.

I live in San Jose with my husband and two sons. We love the great outdoors, especially Lake Tahoe in the winter and exploring new cities in the summer.
